Starting in September, the Canton Public Library will be offering a new service to help you get the most out of your library visit. Roving library staff, identifiable by bright red shirts, will be out on the library floor, offering service where you need it.

“We want to meet people where they are and give them one-on-one help,” says Rebecca Havenstein-Coughlin, Adult Services Department Head. “We found people ask more questions of staff if we are out in the stacks instead of behind the desk.”

Rovers can help you locate material, learn to use the self-checkout machines, get online and myriad other things. We will still have staff at the Reference Desk for in-depth questions and reference assistance. Look for the staff person in red at your next library visit and see how our Rovers can help you.

Community Paper Recycling Bin

Are you buried under a mountain of papers? We've got a solution to that. The Canton Public Library has contracted for a Paper Retriever recycling bin from Abitibi. It is located in the back section of the lot near employee parking and is ready and waiting for your newspapers, magazines, shopping catalogs, office and school papers and mail. No phonebooks or cardboard, please. Recycle your papers here and you'll save landfill space, clean up the environment and earn money for the library.

Sheryl Rzetelny, Canton Public Library administrative assistant, demonstrates the new paper recycling bin.

It's All About You @ Your Library

There are thousands of ways you can use the library. You might attend a program, discuss a book or learn a language. Look for a job, a movie or a mutual fund. Connect to the Web, your community or your child. Look for the Smart Card in this issue of Connections and learn some new ways to use the Canton Public Library and the Internet Branch.

OUR INTERNET BRANCH IS ALWAYS OPEN:

Get the Goods on Grad School

Are you considering a new career goal or advancing your skills? Is graduate school in your plans? The library can help you explore your professional options with these new sources in the education collection.

Peterson's Graduate Schools in the U.S. 2008 has the latest information on an array of academic disciplines.

Pursuing a master's degree is a tremendous investment of your time and financial resources. The Graduate School Companion provides practical advice for finding the right program to meet your aspirations.

If you must take the GRE, then tame that beast with the Crash Course for the New GRE, 3rd edition. It's designed for the busy professional with limited prep time.

Job Hunting Headquarters

Looking for a job? The Canton Public Library can help you through the whole process.

Start with our Find a Career Special Collection at www.cantonpl.org/special/career.html to discover the career that suits you. Then get your resume in job-hunting shape with our extensive collection of books, including specialty titles for recent college grads, blue-collar workers, women re-entering the job market, retirees and specific fields. Most also include information about sending your resume through email or posting it on the Internet.

The Business & Company Resource Center database features detailed company profiles, industry news and information so you can target businesses and industries in your search and prepare for interviews. Check out one of the library's books on interviewing and learn strategies for answering tough questions.

The library can help after the interview as well with books to help you write the perfect thank-you note, juggle multiple offers and even learn how to negotiate for the best possible salary and benefits package. For more job hunting help, look on page 3 for a new series of programs to connect you to the resources you need.

Work Your Way

It's easy to work the way you want at the Canton Public Library. You can work from home, accessing the library's databases online for research or look up and reserve materials from your home computer at www.cantonpl.org.

Bring your laptop to the library and plug into our network data ports with a 10 megabit Internet connection or use our free wireless Internet. Enjoy the peace and quiet of the library, helpful reference librarians, plus a great lunch or snack from Jungle Java Express.

Don't have a computer? Use a library computer equipped with popular programs like Excel, Powerpoint and Microsoft Word; some also have Publisher and Access. Then save your work to your flash drive or a floppy and take it anywhere.

Get Reading Suggestions Online @ Your Library

BookLetters is an online reading service that offers lists of reading suggestions, including book awards and New York Times bestsellers. When you find a title you're interested in, one click connects you to our catalog so you can reserve the book. You can even sign up to receive email newsletters with suggestions sent right to your inbox. Visit www.cantonpl.org/services/bookprog/bookltrs.html.

Starting this fall, the Canton Public Library will be lending video games! Borrow a new game for your GameCube, Xbox 360 and PS2. We have all kinds of games rated teen and below; look for them in the Teen Place.

ACT and AP Preparation Online

Are you taking an AP class this semester? Now you can take practice tests for your course online so you'll be better prepared for your finals. The same goes for the ACT. Instead of forking over money for one of those practice courses, use the Canton Public Library's free online preparation.

Just log on to www.cantonpl.org/database/index.html. From there, select Test Preparation and then click on LearnATest. Select the course you'd like – Advanced Placement for those AP tests, or College Entrance Exams for your ACT – you're ready to go. This database features tests and skills improvement for almost any subject so you can also use it to prepare for other tests.

Have your Canton Public Library card number handy to access this database from home or school.

The Fun Way to Improve Your Grades

The next time you get a big homework project, stop by the library and check out some great CD-ROMs to make putting together that diorama or charting a time line super easy. Take home the Diorama Designer software to design, print and assemble 3-D dioramas. Create a graph for your social studies project with The Graph Club CD-ROM to make information attractive and easy to understand. Time Liner 5.0 helps you create, illustrate and print time lines with ease. All are PC and Mac compatible and fun to use. Just think how great your project will look with these fun tools.

Storytime Your Way

In response to surveys and your comments, we changed our storytime programs. We've changed the age range for each program so our staff can plan more age appropriate materials and activities. We've also added more storytime dates and times to the calendar to accommodate more families.

Although the storytimes have changed, registration is the same. You'll need to register online, using your child's library card. And because of the huge demand, we limit storytimes to Canton residents.

Required Reading @ Your Library

Did your teacher assign a book as part of a class reading assignment? Try reading the book through an audio CD or Playaway format. Hearing the book, as well as reading it yourself, will help your comprehension and it's fun, too.
